Joint Base Lewis-McChord Overview

Joint Base Lewis-McChord — now simply known as JBLM — “supports over 120,000 military retirees and more than 29,000 family members living both on and off post. The base has a total active population of nearly 210,000 inhabitants, making it the fourth largest military installment worldwide by population. JBLM consists of four geographical areas, Lewis Main, Lewis North, McChord Field, and Yakima Training Center. Lewis Main, Lewis North and McChord Field cover over 86,000 acres; while Yakima Training Center covers 324,000 acres.”

“JBLM is the number one employer in Pierce and Thurston counties and the number four employer in the state, with 70% of the JBLM workforce living off-base and in the surrounding communities. JBLM accounts for more than 83,000 full time equivalent jobs and in Pierce and Thurston counties, 25,500 economic spinoff jobs that would otherwise not exist if it were not for the presence of JBLM.”

A recent University of Washington – Tacoma Milgard School of Business Center for Business Analytics study revealed that JBLM generates about $14 billion a year in economic impact across the state. Of that $14 billion, $12.1 billion is for Pierce and Thurston counties.
